THE people of Folkien have been particularly unfortunate of late. "Uninerciful disaster Las followed fast and followed faster " after them e no sooner have they begun to recover from the effects of one calamity than unother overtakes them. Last year the city of Foochow was laid waste by fire, flood, and storm. A great many lives were eachinged and the destruction of property was on an enormous scale. The effects of the flood and typhoon over a wide area. Added to these evils there was a partial failure in the grain crops, • food of the people had to be imported. Another great and unexpected inundation and surrounding district, and wrought tremendous havos in it. Hundreds of houses day.

have been washed away, two thousand persons have, it is computed, lost their lives, THE CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY and the extent of the damage done cannot that no telegram to this effect had been received at present be estimated. Thousands of poor by the agent or the Insurance Companies. The people have been rendered homeless and destitute by this disastrous inundation, while to add to the general distress the injury to the growing rice crop has been so serious that it is believed about one-third of it has been lost. This will, of course, have the effect of raising the prices, already sufficiently to the inch, and by means of coloured tlags on high, necessarily rendering the struggle to live much keener.

According to our Foochow contemporary, the local Authorities displayed commendable zeal in putting down the attempts made by the lawless classes to billage and create disorder, while they also did what they could to provide shelter and immediate necessaries for the unfortunate victims of the flood. It is gratifying to notice, too, that the foreign community lost no time in starting a subscription and administering relief to the starving people. Some two thousand dollars were speedily raised for that purpose, but further funds are urgently needed. The Herald while giving credit to the Authorities for their laudable efforts to relieve the more pressing wants of the homeless people, thinks that they are deserving of consure for having | by the prisoner and necused of improper conduct neglected to take precautions to save the city and its inhabitants from these frequently recurring floods. THE Reuter's telegrams last received show that the Russians are making decided progress in Europe and continue to sustain reverses in Asia. In Europe they are rapidly accomplishing the passage of the Danube, and the Turks must be still falling back, for it is stated that the Russians-have occupied Hirsova, in which fortress the Turks were recently reported to have taken up their position. It is evident from this that the Turks are retiring altogether from the Dobrudscha, and their main army will probably fall back among the Balkans, while they will at the same time defend the principal fortresses in Bulgaria. The whole of the Russian army will shortly be in that province, and the campaign will has been no great or decisive engagement fought in which the strength of the contending hosts has been fairly tried. All that has Messrs. Wilson, Nicholls & Co. to come. The horrors of war have scarcely commenced. We can only hope that they will not be very prolonged. But until one of the combatants begins to suffer from exhaustion it is to be feared there will be no chance of peace being again restored.

HER LAST MANIA

THE BALLADS OF SEVEN-DIALS The chief articles of commerce dealt in by "The Dials" are ballads and birds. For the first-named it has been famous for many a long year. Here were manufactured the "last dying speeches and confessions" of all the unfortunate criminals whose names swell the annals of the Newgate Calendar. Look at this dirty little shop, with its mudspattered window full of roughly-printed old-fashioned hallads of "The Farmer's Boy" and "The Bailiff's Daughter," topical catchpenny songs upon great lawsuits or social scandals, dismal accounts of great disasters grasped my stick, and started off again. at sea, which are readily bought, and then howled dismally in the streets, as you my London reader, have doubtless heard them and wondered where and how the rhymes were strung together. Listen to this account of himself by one of the local poets:-"The little knowledge that I have, I have picked up bit by bit, so that I hardly know how I have come by it.
